1. Kitchen Table Conversations: Mentoring Series for BIPOC Graduate Students in the Arts. Sponsored and hosted by the Coalition for Racial Equity in Art + Education (crea+e) (2020-Present)

Kitchen Table Conversations (KTC) is a national mentoring series developed specifically for Black, Indigenous, & People of Color (BIPOC) graduate students in the arts field. KTC was created to support the retention and matriculation of students of color in the field. The monthly meetings serve as a site for unpacking what means and looks like to be BIPOC in the arts. Some session topics include BIPOC mental health in graduate school, getting the job while BIPOC and navigating whiteness in the curriculum and classroom.

2. Black Women Write. Sponsored by The Women's Place. The Ohio State University (2017-2019)

Black Women Write (BWW) is a collective that aims to provide support, encouragement and care to Black women writers across the university. Acknowledging the multidimensionality of writing, this collective welcomes academic writers engaging in research manuscripts, literary artists developing poetry and prose, program developers constructing grants, and more. BWW hopes to offer a level of institutionalized support for Black women working to maintain scholarly and creative excellence across the OSU campus.
